

EDITORS DESCRIBE CALMETTE MURDER SCENE

Mason's deposition was read to the same effect.

Vivid Description of Scene.
Other members of the staff of the Figaro then testified, among them Louis Lataurus, who gave a vivid description of the scene when Mme. Callaux shot Calmette.

Lataurus said he heard shots and ran to Calmette's room, where Calmette had sunk in a state of collapse in a chair. M. Sirac, he said, was holding a woman by the wrists. She cried: "Let me go, I am not going to escape."

Sirac then let her go, said the witness, and she stood near the door, cleared and with her face neither pale nor flushed. She seemed untroubled by the 15 editors who quickly gathered around her.

"She began to speak," said the witness, saying: "Since there is no justice in France..."

"Shut your mouth," said one of the editors. "After what you have done, keep quiet."

"I was not speaking to you," said Mme. Callaux.

Lataurus declared that Mme. Callaux was perfectly mistress of herself when he saw her after the crime. He stated that he had talked about the Calmette campaign many times with Calmette, adding:

"My chief said he had diplomatic documents important enough absolutely to crush Calmette."

After Calmette had printed the "Thy Joe" letter, according to Lataurus, he remarked: "My pockets are empty. I have nothing more."

Judge Abner then asked Mme. Callaux if she had anything to say about the Victor Fabre document, and Mme. Callaux replied:

"I had no fear of that, because I knew the part my husband had taken in the Rochette affair."

Then, alluding to her calmness after the shooting, Mme. Callaux said:

"All the world knew that night the condition of M. Calmette except myself, and I did not know until the next day that my action was irreparable."

Maitre Labori remarked to the Court that two of the documents found upon the person of Gaston Calmette had been sent to President Poincaré and that all the others had been sent to Georges Prestant, the president of the Board of Directors of the Figaro.

Tells of Burning Papers.
"I see M. Prestant among the spectators," continued Maitre Labori. "Perhaps he can tell the Court what was done with those papers."

"The papers I received," said M. Prestant, "were only copies of the handwriting of M. Calmette. One was the Fabre document, then already published; the second was the 'Thy Joe' letter, from which the intimate passages had been expurgated. I considered I had the right to destroy these papers and I burned them."

Then, turning toward the jury, M. Prestant said: "They had cost the life of my relative."

At 10:25 the Court took a recess.

Mme. Callaux took frequent notes of the testimony during the day, writing on a pad placed upon her knees, and she accumulated quite a large portfolio.

Prisoner Up at 1 o'clock
Mme. Callaux was up at 1 o'clock this morning. She took an early breakfast and before 8 o'clock was waiting for her husband.

The prisoner previously had looked through a mass of morning papers and had found that generally she had been sympathetically treated. The stenographic report of her testimony filled 12 columns in some of the newspapers and besides this there were many appreciative notices of her dexterous arrangement of facts and of the feeling she had put into her descriptions of her agony.

The Court was a little late in assembling today. Meanwhile, Mme. Callaux talked over her case with Ferdinand Labori, her advocate, in a private waiting room. After Judge Louis Abner and his associates had taken their places on the bench, Mme. Callaux entered the prisoner's enclosure without hesitation, and with an air of making herself at home.

Joseph Calmette, the prisoner's husband, then entered the courtroom and took his place among the witnesses. He was accompanied by two detectives, owing to the fact that a group of bystanders had hooted him and shouted insults at him as he left the prison after visiting his wife.

Mme. Callaux held the attention of the crowded courtroom for three hours yesterday. Slight, almost insignificant in appearance and possessing none of the outward characteristics of a figure of romance, she spoke with great assurance, addressing herself in turn to each part of the room like a lecturer. She told the story of her life and murder in short, disconnected sentences, but showed remarkable skill in marshaling her facts so as to represent them in the best light for her cause.

The Judge's role was a simple one, confined to encouraging her with brief questions as she came to each successive phase of the drama. Mme. Callaux was a willing witness throughout and showed great self-control. It was only after she had concluded her narrative and was asked if there was anything she would like to add that she made a most restrained aside and with content of genuine emotion thrilled her listeners and elicited murmurs of applause. Then she described vividly the protracted agony she had endured because of the calumnies against herself and her husband.

"Mounted Calvary Three Months." "For three months I mounted Calvary," she said. "Such I do not wish to say my worst enemy. No one can imagine what I went through. I feared for myself, for my husband, for my child. I feared for myself because if part of those letters were published my deepest, innermost secret would be displayed before the world, my woman's honor standing in jeopardy."

"I don't know," she said, in a burst of tears. "I fired. I did not think I had hit him; it is frightful that those revolvers go off by themselves."

The people in the courtroom laughed, even the Judge. Mrs. Callaux looked indignant, and exclaimed: "It was all so quick. I assure you I cannot tell precisely what happened."

She was silent a moment, and then the Judge asked: "Have you anything further to say?"

"I regret it infinitely."

"Do you maintain your statement made to the examining Judge that you at no time intended to kill M. Calmette?"

"Wanted Only to Make Scandal." "Certainly, sir, I meant only to make a scandal. I did not in the direction of his feet. It is such a dreadful burden for me to carry all my life that I have killed a man. Why should I have killed him? Never have I said that the punishment of Calmette should be death. Would I thus have recognized the very thing, the affection of my husband and my daughter, to go and kill?"

She struggled for breath; her words came disjointedly and sobs broke her sentences.

"In trying to avoid a catastrophe I have made it irreparable for myself; my daughter, my poor papa," she continued. "I had done better to have allowed anything to have been published."

She fell back upon a chair and shook from sobbing.

The Judge again inquired: "Have you anything more to say?"

"I regret it from the depths of my heart," replied Mme. Callaux.

Tells of Further Slanders. Telling further of the slanders against her husband, Mme. Callaux said:

"The newspapers read by society were filled with spiteful articles, so that I was afraid to call on my friends."

"One day at a fashionable dressmaker's two women sat beside me. One leaned over to the other and said: 'See that woman in black; that is the wife of the thief, Calmette.'"

"If I lived for a hundred years I should always hear that woman."

"In a friend's drawing room I heard a woman say: 'Soon good Frenchmen will all be sent to the guillotine.'"

"She answered: 'It is a disgrace to have a Minister about whom the newspapers tell such things every morning.'"

"I gave her such a look that she did not go on."

The first witness of the day was Louis Carpin, President of Commissary, who had interrogated Mme. Callaux immediately after her arrest. She told him, he said, that she had been in the Figaro office with the object of trying to stop the publication of private correspondence between her and her husband, but declined to say from whom she had learned the facts.

She then related to him the circumstances of the shooting and added that she had only intended to teach Calmette a lesson, not to kill him, and would be very pleased to hear that he was not badly hurt."

Asked by the Judge if she had anything to say regarding the evidence of the witness, Mme. Callaux replied in the negative.

Policemen Say She Was Calm. The next three witnesses were policemen, who were present in the Figaro office immediately after the shooting. In answer to a question propounded by Prosecutor Herbaux, all agreed that Mme. Callaux was perfectly calm.

One of the jurymen asked Policeman Louis Bouali whether an unpaid cartoon given him by Calmette the day before the shooting was in the revolver, to which the witness answered no.

M. Labori, for the defense, then sprang to his feet and said:

"Mme. Callaux believed that there was a ball left and that fact is important. I am glad this question came from the jury."

The most notable witness was Judge Monier of the tribunal of the Seine. His version of the conversation with Mme. Callaux was essentially the same as that given by her, except that he denied he had said anything about being surprised that with the French temperament there had not been more heads broken.

Here M. Labori interposed and pointed out that when a man of M. Monier's eminence said there was nothing to be done, Mme. Callaux might very well have been so impressed that her own mind had unconsciously added the phrase as a logical conclusion of the conversation.

3 MEN EJECTED FROM PARK SUE FOR $21,500
O. H. Kepley, manager of the American Motor Manufacturing Co., and Clifford B. Nelson and R. V. Jones, salesmen for the company, filed suits in the Circuit Court Tuesday, asking damages from the Forest Park Highlands Amusement Co., because they were ejected from the Highlands July 4. Kepley and Jones sued for $7500 each, and Nelson for $5000.

The petitions allege that without cause they were forcibly ejected, and that Kepley was thrown over a low railing at the entrance.

John M. Goodwin, their attorney, told a Post-Dispatch reporter the three men went to the Highlands in an automobile in the afternoon. They were sitting in a pavilion singing college songs, when a watchman told them the company paid $900 a week for talent and didn't want any competition. Goodwin said they stopped singing.

Several hours later, Goodwin says, the men were sitting at a table with a woman acquaintance, when watchmen came to the park and ordered them from the park. The attorney said the men were forced to leave and were not permitted to see the manager.

MAN ROBBED OF

$780 ON AUTO-RIDE WITH A STRANGER

Arrest of Former Patrolman Is Ordered on Story of Henry Leimkuhler.

Charles Stewart of 3110 Lucas avenue, a former patrolman, is sought by the police in their investigation of the theft of $780 from Henry Leimkuhler, 1500 Chambers street, in an automobile Monday night. The police wish to question Stewart.

Leimkuhler, a grocer's clerk, appeared at the Dayton Street Station about 1 a. m. Tuesday. He said he drew $800.00 from a bank to take a vacation trip with his friend, Charles Stewart, of 308 Lucas avenue. The two met in a saloon at 2301 Lucas avenue about 11:30 p. m. and Leimkuhler suggested an automobile ride.

Leimkuhler said Stewart volunteered to call a machine and that when it arrived he jumped into it without an invitation. At Channing avenue and Olive street, Leimkuhler said Stewart jumped from the machine and almost immediately after he missed his money.

Stewart could not be found at his home, the police say, and an order for his arrest was issued.

Temperance Worker on Way to a Sanitarium in Detroit When He Quits Cars at Night.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 21.—The Rev. Louis R. Patmont, temperance worker, who disappeared from Detroit Monday ago and was found at Rib Lake, Wis., last Saturday, following his first disappearance from Westville, Ill., has again disappeared, having left the train on the Soo Line bound for Chicago some time after 2 o'clock this morning, according to a telegram received from the Rev. According to the Rev. Mr. Milton, Patmont was aboard a sleeper on the train bound for Chicago. On the same sleeper were two Detroit men, including the Rev. Claude F. Witte.

The Rev. Mr. Milton was on the Milwaukee sleeper and left the train at Rugby Junction, coming to Milwaukee. He had learned that the two Detroit men, telegrams have been sent by the Rev. Witte to every station on the Soo Line where the train stopped during the night.

He believed Patmont disappeared after 2 a. m.

MANN SEEKS DATA ON PARDON BY PRESIDENT

Resolution Calls for Information in Case of Senator Fletcher's Son-in-Law.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Representative James R. Mann, Republican floor leader in the House, yesterday afternoon laid the foundation for a future attack on President Wilson when he presented a resolution to obtain from the White House all the data concerning the pardon last week of Dr. Thomas J. Kemp, son-in-law of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida.

The only instance of motive given by Mr. Mann is that he has taken a deep interest in all prosecutions arising under the "Mann act." He holds that the Kemp case was associated closely with the character of the President.

Dr. Kemp was tried and sentenced to a year in prison for the same offense of sending a letter through the mails supplying information to inquirers as to whether illegal operations might be performed. He was sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary and pay a fine of $500. The District Court of Appeals affirmed the decision of the trial court.

An appeal was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, which upheld the findings of the lower tribunals. They came the pardon.

CARBAJAL WILL NOT SURRENDER UNCONDITIONALLY

Authoritative Information From Mexican Capital Declares He Will Continue War Unless Guarantees of Amnesty Are Given by Gen. Carranza.

REBEL CHIEF SAID HE WOULDN'T MAKE TERMS

Agreed to Conference Only to Arrange Details of Taking Over Government—Disaffection of Villa Disturbing Factor.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Provisional President Carballal does not intend to surrender unconditionally to Gen. Carranza and will concentrate his military forces and resist an invasion rather than permit the Constitutionalists to enter Mexico City without previous agreements not to take vengeance on the lives and property of those who supported Gen. Huerta.

This was the tenor of information today from authoritative sources in Mexico City to Washington Diplomats. It spread a feeling of pessimism in some quarters over the possibility of an amicable settlement of the revolution. Gen. Carranza, when he informed the American Consuls at Monterey that he would receive a commission from Carballal made it plain that he would do so only to arrange for the unconditional surrender by the Mexico City authorities. There was no indication today as to how far the American Government was prepared to exert pressure on Carranza to obtain amnesty and guarantees. Diplomats were watching with keen interest the reports that Gen. Villa was again threatening a break with Carranza.

Huerta Predicts Peace in Mexico as He Sails for Jamaica. FORTUO MEXICO, Mexico, July 21.—Accompanied by his wife and children and by Gen. Blazquez and the latter's wife and daughter, Gen. Huerta sailed for Jamaica last night on the German cruiser Dresden.

Before leaving he declared he did not believe intervention would ever take place in Mexico, but that peace ultimately would come. "There is a crisis," he said, "in any disease, physical or social, and such a crisis must be expected here. It may come in a month or it may come later, but it must come, and after that the patient will begin his recovery."

Pointing to the sky, he said: "The planets get along alone very nicely, although not all are of the same magnitude nor shine with the same brilliancy. And so it is with the nations. So far as the American people are concerned, I think much of them. I consider it the greatest nation. But I know that between the people and the Government there is a wide difference. "President Wilson, however, is a great friend of mine. You did not know that. Yes, it is true that Wilson, Carranza and Villa made me popular. "They advertised me when in reality I was nobody—nothing more than one of these," and he pointed to the assembled crowd. "There was no ovation, no cheers when he went aboard. The remaining members of the party boarded the Bristol, where they will remain until a passenger boat comes in to carry them to Kingston, where Huerta is bound. This was done because some of them feared to remain longer ashore in Puerto Mexico because of the possibility of rebels and the questionable loyalty of the troops. Gen. Huerta remained on deck on the Dresden, and as she sailed away he stationed himself at the rail where he remained until nearly dark, watching with binoculars those he had left behind on shore.

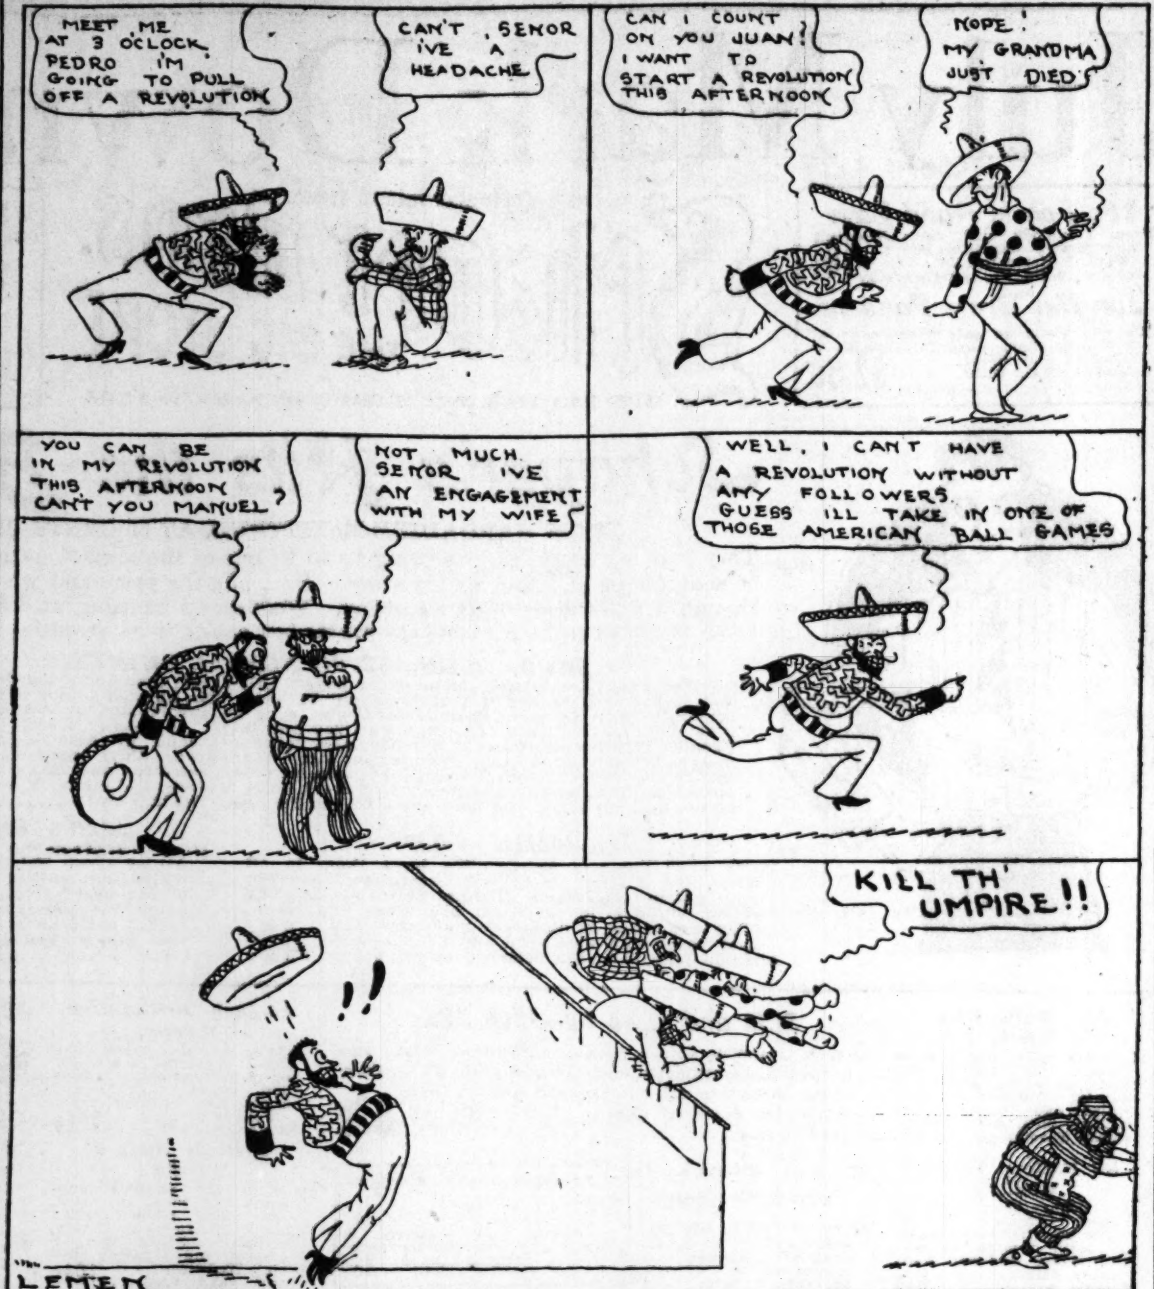

Movement of Villa's Troops Southward Reported to Have Begun. EL PASO, Tex., July 21.—The Southern movement of Gen. Villa's forces has begun, according to advices received today in Juarez, opposite El Paso. Gen. Villa was still in Chihuahua City, but was expected to depart for the South within 48 hours and his army of 25,000 men was reported en route for the journey to Queretaro. It is at Queretaro that three divisions of the Constitutional army will converge for the triumphant entry into the national capital, according to Constitutionalists here. Constitutionalists troops will approach no closer than Queretaro to Mexico City until final arrangements are made for the transfer of the Government from Provisional President Coahuila to Gen. Carranza, it was asserted.

Protestant Churches Plan to Open Schools in Mexico. NEW YORK, July 21.—A great religious and constitutional campaign in Mexico, in which all Protestant denominations will unite, is planned, now that peace is apparently in sight in that country. Bishop Oldham, chairman of the General Committee representing the various mission boards, announced a big co-educational university will be established and at least one high school will be opened in every mission territory. Each organized congregation will have its elementary school, where domestic and manual arts will be taught.

Minister Rules Sails for Spain to Face Trial. HAVANA, July 21.—Senor Esteva Ruiz, former Mexican Foreign Minister, sailed last yesterday on the steamer Alfonso XIII for Spain. He said he was going to Spain to practice law.

COOLER WEATHER LIKELY TO FOLLOW THE SOLAR HALO

Father Brennan, Astronomer, Regards Sharp Drop in Temperature as Almost Certain.

The Rev. Martin S. Brennan, priest and well-known astronomer, Tuesday said he believed the prismatic ring around the sun which attracted the attention of hundreds of St. Louisans Monday afternoon was a forerunner of much cooler weather. "The solar halo is a phenomenon which is most unusual in the summer," said Father Brennan. "It can be caused by only one thing—ice crystals in the clouds. It means that the humidity or moisture in the air extends so high that it freezes. The clouds which carried these ice particles Monday probably were five miles above the earth. It was extremely cold up there. As the water in those clouds is turned to ice the clouds become heavier and sink to a lower level. "Change Not Rapid in Summer. "In their approach to the earth these clouds will bring their coolness with them and I regard it as almost certain that this will mean a sharp drop in temperature for St. Louis. "The change cannot be expected to be so rapid as in winter, when there is less humidity in the lower strata of air. When a ring is seen around the sun in winter there is an almost immediate drop in temperature on the surface of the earth. There is less resistance to the rapid descent of the cold, ice-bearing clouds. "It is possible, also, that the sun rings were a forerunner of rain as well as cooler weather. At the height at which the clouds were flying yesterday it was too cold for precipitation, but when they reach a lower level the ice crystals may melt and turn into rain."

No Immediate Effect. The sun ring did not have an immediate effect on St. Louis temperatures Monday night or early Tuesday. At 7 a. m. the temperature was 74, two degrees higher than at the same hour

Monday and at 9 a. m. the temperature was 81, the same as at the corresponding hour Monday.

Father Brennan said the cooler weather promised by the sun ring might require from 24 to 48 hours to reach St. Louis. The ring first was observed shortly before noon Monday and was hidden from view by clouds about 2 p. m.

SMALL ICE MEN READY TO TESTIFY AGAINST "TRUST"

Willing to Be Witnesses if Polar Wave Is Recalled Before Supreme Court.

Smaller ice dealers, who say the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co. continues to use unfair and illegal methods of suppressing them unless they contract to buy ice at the "Ice Trust's" terms, gave assurance Tuesday to Post-Dispatch reporters that they would testify to these oppressive tactics before a commissioner, provided the Polar Wave is cited to appear before the State Supreme Court in the pending anti-trust prosecution, in which the Polar Wave has had half of a $50,000 fine remitted.

These dealers decline to permit the publication of their names unless the State uses the information in the prosecution that may be reopened if Assistant Attorney-General W. T. Rutherford recommends the action suggested by Loomis C. Johnson, special prosecutor appointed by Gov. Major. One dealer described how the Polar Wave this season attempted to increase the price of ice in his contract by 125 per cent, and when he arranged to buy his small supply from an independent manufacturer, the Polar Wave promptly took away his most profitable customer by signing a contract with the consumer at a smaller rate than it had offered to the dealer.

Evidence Is Available. The consumer who was lured away from the little independent dealer who defied the Polar Wave, purchased less than two tons of ice daily, yet received a lower rate than was offered at the same time to the dealer, who consumed more than 15 tons a day. The blank contracts submitted to the dealer and the signed contract held by the consumer are available as evidence if Rutherford recommends that the Supreme Court reopen the Ice Trust case to determine whether it continues practices held to be illegal in the decision written by Justice Graves last April, in which the court concurred unanimously. Evidence of other efforts to harass small dealers who broke away from the domination of the Polar Wave is available, dealers say. That the Polar Wave discriminates in its rates between dealers by giving lower rates to small than to large dealers in some instances, and by refusing to sell at any price to some ice firms that are in a position to give strenuous competition, is alleged.

Rates Vary, It Is Asserted. It also is stated that the Polar Wave has not observed the same rate schedule in all parts of the city prior to the recent 20 per cent increase, and gave lower rates to family consumers in one section than in another.

The fear of reprisals on the part of the Polar Wave Co. is so great, dealers say, that they will not openly describe their differences with the big concern unless they are subpoenaed to give testimony under oath. Complaint has been made since the Polar Wave Co. announced an increase of rates July 11, that $5.50 coupon books ordered a week or more before July 11, were delivered since the raise was announced and the company insisted that $5, the new price, must be paid for the 2000-pound coupons in the book. Mrs. Julia Given of 6105 Berlin avenue, who ordered a book a week before the raise, says the book was delivered to her Tuesday with the statement that she would be charged $4 in spite of a complaint she made last week against paying this price. The driver tore out 475 pounds, Mrs. Given said, half of which was consumed before the rates were raised.

TELLS OF BEING HELD UP IN FOREST PARK

Boy Says He Was Seated With Girl When Masked Man With Revolver Got $3.65.

Jesse McBride, 17 years old, of 3151 School street, a theater usher, reported to the mounted police Monday that he was robbed of $3.65 by a masked highwayman Sunday night while seated on a bench in Forest Park with a young woman.

McBride said he was sitting near the South Grand Drive and not far from the Laclede Pavilion. The robber wore a handkerchief over the lower part of his face. He held a revolver at McBride's head and forced him to hold up his hands.

This is the second robbery in the park in three weeks by a highwayman masked with a handkerchief. Walter H. Drie-

ICE BOX THIEF CAUGHT

Residents in the neighborhood of Page boulevard and Euclid avenue, whose iceboxes have been robbed recently, will be interested in the arrest Tuesday of George Woodmore of 487 Easton avenue, 12 years old, a negro, who was captured after a chase in which the police fired several shots.

A patrolman saw Woodmore run into an alley in the rear of 487 Easton avenue at 4 a. m. and called upon him to halt, firing at him as he gave chase. Woodmore was caught a block away by a Sergeant and another patrolman. Woodmore had several tools and four cans of sardines, which he admitted having taken from the back porch of Mrs. Edward Benson's home, 1311 North Euclid avenue.

FARMER ACCUSED OF STARVING HIS WIFE

He Is Calmly Eating Breakfast With Her Body 5 Feet Away When Arrested.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 21.—Daniel C. Cunningham, 55 years old, a well-to-do farmer living near Waverly, was arrested today on a warrant charging first degree murder. It is claimed his wife died of starvation and he is accused of having refused her food while she was ill.

When Cunningham was arrested he was calmly eating his breakfast, with his wife's body lying not over five feet away from him. He is alleged to have dug her grave while she was ill and for several weeks prior to her death to have worked on her coffin by her bedside so she could see his progress.

Woman Files in Illinois. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 21.—Miss Caroline Grote of Pittsfield yesterday filed a petition as Democratic candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction. She is the first woman to file for any office for the September primaries.

ST. LOUIS COAL ROADS DENOUNCED BY COMMISSION

Dealers Found to Control Lines to Illinois Fields; Independent Operators Suffer.

PROFITS ARE DOUBLED

Troy and Eastern, Donk Bros. Line, Makes 39 Per Cent a Year, Report Shows.

Industrial railroads at St. Louis, which own and operate coal mines in the Illinois fields, and make a profit both from the selling and the hauling of the coal, were unparaphrasedly criticized by the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday in a report to Congress recommending that the Hepburn rate law be amended to prohibit railroads from carrying any commodity in which they had an interest.

The business methods of the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad, which is one of the heaviest coal-carrying railroads between the Illinois fields and St. Louis, were condemned by the commission.

The commission reported that the stock of the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern was owned by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Investment Co., which also owns the stock of the Donk Bros. Coal and Coke Co. Such mutuality of interest was not to be permitted, the commission declares. It has long been a matter of common knowledge in St. Louis that the Donk Bros. Coal Co. controlled the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad.

The commission holds the making of two profits—one on hauling and the other on selling the coal—is one of the greatest evils in the railroad business. It declares that the operator associated with the railroad is able to undersell the independent operator by the amount of freight rate.

Furnished Meat of Tennessee.
The commission finds there are three Donk mines on the 35 miles of the Troy & Eastern Railroad. Between 1908 and 1912 Donk Bros. furnished from 80 to 95 per cent of the tonnage for the railroad.

How shipments of anthracite coal from the East to St. Louis were judged to give the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern a 25-mile haul from Edwardsville to St. Louis are shown by the commission's report.

For the 25-mile haul from Edwardsville to St. Louis, the Troy & Eastern, at the time the commission made its investigation, got 24 cents a ton, while the Clover Leaf, which hauled the coal from Toledo to Edwardsville, a distance of 425 miles, got only 46 cents a ton. The Pere Marquette, which hauled the same coal from Bridgeport, Ontario, to Toledo, a distance of 307 miles, got a freight rate of 96 cents a ton. Oil was shipped in the same manner, with a similar division of the freight rate.

The commission said the Clover Leaf has rails of its own to St. Louis, and could have completed the shipment of the coal, but was required to turn the shipment over to the Troy & Eastern at Edwardsville for the obvious reason that unless it did so it would have got none of the Donk Bros. coal business.

Owing to the mutuality of interests between the railroad and the coal company, the Troy & Eastern has made huge profits during the 11-year period covered by the commission. The commission found that the profits of the road during that period were $1,500,000, which was 29 per cent a year, on its capital stock of $500,000.

The commission also reported that the railroad made profits from shipments consigned to the Devoy & Kuhn Coal and Coke Co. of St. Louis.

O'Fallon Road Also Assailed.
The commission also found that there was another combination at St. Louis between railroads and coal companies which gave huge profits to the owners. This combination consists of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railway, St. Louis and O'Fallon Coal and Coke Co. and the Western Anthracite Coal and Coke Co.

The railroad is only eight miles long, and hauls coal from two O'Fallon mines, which is sold principally in St. Louis. For the year ending June 30, 1913, the railroad company laid aside a surplus of $74,297 after paying a 10 per cent dividend, amounting to $15,000, on its capital stock.

It is pointed out also that the Litchfield & Madison Railway Co. is owned by the Illinois company, a holding corporation, which also owns control of the Mount Olive and Staunton Coal Co. This railroad is 50 miles long, and hauls coal from the mines to St. Louis. The commission made no statement as to the profits of the railroad, but declared that less than 1 per cent of the coal carried by the road was burned in its own engines.

The Hepburn act provides that it shall be unlawful for railroads to carry any article in which it may have an interest except such articles necessary for its use as a common carrier, and timber and coal. Should the commission's recommendations be enacted into law, the railroads would now be prohibited from carrying coal from mines in which they have a financial interest.

Mill Lies in Double Profits.
The commission declared that a potent evil arises from the mutual interests of carriers and coal companies, inasmuch as there are in reality two profits, one in the sale and the other in the transportation of the coal, and that the profit in the freight rate becomes an added factor in competition for commercial coal business.

The report of the commission was in response to the Tillman-Gillespie resolution passed by Congress eight years ago. There was no suggestion of graft in the industrial railroad situation at St. Louis, but the commission found evidence of "inside graft" in many similar situations in other parts of the country.

The commission declared that there had been graft in the operation of the coal mines owned by the New York Central Railroad. These mines were controlled by former President W. C.

Brown, two of his brothers-in-law, and S. W. McCune, a friend of Brown. The commission declared that McCune abused Brown's confidence.

The commission's objection is wholly to a public policy that allows single interests to own both coal mines and the railroads needed to market the coal. Its recommendations are that the transportation and private business of all kinds be separated and that railroads be forbidden to lend money or their credit in the promotion of private business.

Discrimination in Illinois.
The commission believes railroads should not have any inducement to discriminate between coal mine operators along their lines in the purchase of fuel coal for their engines. In the Illinois field, to which the report refers, discrimination can be practiced not merely in the placing of contracts, but in the demands that may be made upon them.

Illinois coal is of such a moist nature that it cannot be stored in piles exposed to the weather without great deterioration through the crumbling of the lumps and through slacking.

For that reason it must be mined in winter, when the demand is great. Coal supply is a prime factor. Railroad fuel contracts are taken by independent operators at prices barely, if at all above cost, so as to keep the mines running as steadily as possible, the demand for railroad fuel being fairly constant.

Profits come from commercial coal, or not at all. Railroad contracts, as a rule, are made so that the railroad company is obliged to take a minimum per month, but it also has a right to demand a maximum far in excess of that minimum.

Independent Operators Suffer.
The commission has found that the maximum and minimum is worked against the interests of the independent operators. When the commercial coal market is best, the railroad demands the maximum from the independent operator and the minimum from the mines in which it or its officials are interested. The Vandallia Railroad Co. recently was fined in the United States District Court in East St. Louis for allowing rebates to the Lemaghi Coal Co. It was charged that the railroad borrowed $200,000 at 4 per cent interest, which it loaned to the coal company at 2 per cent interest. This difference in interest rate, it was alleged, was a rebate to the coal company for shipping exclusively over the Vandallia lines.

It was shown that the Lemaghi company had mines near the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad, but that it had entered into an agreement by which it would forfeit title to 800 acres of land if it should ship any of its coal over any other road than the Vandallia.

It was estimated by the Government's attorneys that the railroad would make a profit of $40,000,000 out of the exclusive contract with the coal company, but that these profits would be distributed over a period of 50 years.

BASEBALL STRIKE OFF; PLAYERS WIN FROM COMMISSION

Newark Owner Ends Controversy Over Player Kraft by Paying Nashville Waiver Price.

NEW YORK, July 21.—There will be no strike of baseball players in the two major leagues. The Kraft case, basis for a strike order issued yesterday by the Baseball Players' Fraternity, was settled today by the Newark Internationals agreeing to buy Nashville's interest in Kraft.

Announcement of this effect was made this afternoon by Charles M. Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Nationals, and a large stockholder in the Newark Internationals club.

At the time of Mr. Ebbets' announcement, the American League magnates were in session, having been called together by President Johnson to determine upon a course of action in case the players in the two major leagues should obey the strike order.

Mr. Ebbets announced that Nashville had signed its acceptance of Newark's proposal, and that Kraft would report to the Newark team at Providence tomorrow. Kraft has been under suspension for more than five weeks, ever since his refusal to report to the Nashville club.

In settlement of all claims on Kraft, the Nashville club is to receive $2500, Mr. Ebbets announced.

"I made this arrangement without either request or instructions from either the American or the National League," Mr. Ebbets said. "I am entirely upon my own responsibility."

Mr. Ebbets was asked if the National League had "backed down." "No," he replied. "If anybody has backed down, it is the players. They are the ones who have taken the responsibility for the whole thing."

Kraft Gets Back Pay.
Kraft will not suffer in any way financially, Mr. Ebbets continued. He will be paid his Newark club salary of $400 a month ($100 more than the Nashville club was permitted to pay him), for the entire time that he was under suspension and for the rest of the life of his contract.

"I settled this case myself, because I did not want to see trouble between organized baseball and its players," Mr. Ebbets said. "It seemed to me that this was the simplest and easiest way out of the difficulty for Newark to buy Nashville's interest in the player. Of course, I realize that this arrangement will be construed practically as a victory for the players' Fraternity, inasmuch as they got everything they asked for."

David L. Fultz, president of the Baseball Players' Fraternity, expressed gratification at the outcome of the case. "If the purchase is a bona fide one, and the Newark club intends to use Kraft, we are satisfied," he said. "So far as we are concerned, under these conditions, the incident is ended."

When the American League meeting adjourned, Mr. Johnson said:

STRIKE NOT JUSTIFIED, GOV. TENER DECLARES
HARRISBURG, Pa., July 21.—Gov. Tener, president of the National League, would make no comment on the action taken by Charles Ebbets of Brooklyn to avoid a strike of ball players. Prior to the announcement of the settlement, however, Mr. Tener said:

"In my opinion, the question involved in the 'Players' Fraternity' contention in no sense justifies a strike, which, if called, would jeopardize not only the players' means of livelihood but menace the best interests of the game as well."

CHASE DECISION MEANS MUCH TO BALLPLAYERS
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 21.—"This is indeed a victory, and one which means a great deal to the ballplayers who have been tied up to the national agreement and restrained in their free right of contract," said Edward E. Gates, general counsel of the Federal League. This decision is by far the most far-reaching that has been decided against organized baseball.

"We feel that this opens up the field for the ballplayer and will enable the Federal League to engage in honest and fair competition with those who have monopolized the field for so many years. It will result in a more and much-needed reform in the national game."

CHASE INJUNCTION SUIT IS VACATED BY COURT'S ORDER

Former White Sox Star May Play With Buffalo Federal League Club.

BASEBALL NOT A "TRUST"
But Judge Declares It a Monopoly in Violation of the Common Law.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 21.—Organized baseball suffered another legal defeat today, when Justice Herbert P. Bissell granted the motion to vacate the injunction obtained by the Chicago American League Baseball Club, restraining Hal Chase from playing with the Buffalo (Federal League) Club.

"The lack of mutual obligation in the so-called 10-day clause of the contract under which Chase was playing with the Chicago team whereby the club could terminate the contract on 10 days' notice, while the player was bound under the provisions of the 'National Agreement,' formed the basis of the decision vacating the injunction."

Baseball Not a Trust.
That organized baseball is a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was denied by Justice Bissell on the ground that he cannot agree that "the business of baseball for profit is interstate trade or commerce and therefore subject to the provisions of the Sherman act."

"I have not been in communication with President Tener," he said, "and while I am not in any way influenced by our plans for opposing the Players' Fraternity."

Johnson said he had advised Ebbets to settle the matter in the manner that he generally followed.

"And the National Commission's correspondence," he concluded, "will bear me out in this statement."

Mage Glad Strike Is Off.
Members of the Cardinal club were more than pleased with the announcement Tuesday noon that there would be no strike.

"We were prepared to stand by the players' Fraternity," said Lee Mage, "but inasmuch as such action would prove detrimental to President Britton of our club I inwardly hoped that the fraternity would recede. However, now that the case has been finally settled, I'm more than pleased."

"I believe the Cardinals have a chance for the pennant and anything that would tend to kill interest in the game or hurt our own chances certainly never has or never will appeal to me. But, of course, the fraternity was fighting for a point and I proposed to stand by Fultz."

CALIFORNIA NET STAR WINS LONGWOOD MATCH
BOSTON, July 21.—Straight-set victories were the rule in the forenoon matches in the Longwood tennis championship today.

One of the best matches was between Murray of San Francisco and Dana of Providence, the former winning, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

SPORT SALAD

BY L.C. DAVIS

A Close Squeeze.
H. everything looked rosy for the Cardinals, that day; The score stood 7-2, with but one inning more to play.

When Hummel singled out to right and Egan walked to first, the Cardinals were in a bad way. But when O'Mara sacrificed the runners with work on the new club house, it was thought that no effort would be made to man a shell.

The quartet will be composed of H. A. Bechtesbiller at bow, Oscar Wulff at pitcher, Sam Oesterreicher at catcher and Bob Nelson at shortstop. This should form a competent team for the local harbor. Nelson is an old Harvard man and has won a name in collegiate circles. Bechtesbiller and Oesterreicher recently won both pair-cared races at the Southwestern regatta held last week. Wulff is well known locally as a single sculler.

DIAMOND GLINTS.
Jeff Tessaau came through with a two-hit game for McGraw and the Giants subdued the Reds, 5-0. Monday, Schneider pitched for Cincinnati and was bumped for his.

"Strike if you must, you ivory head! But don't strike out," the magnate said.

CENTURY CLUB TO ENTER "FOUR" IN BUSCH CUP EVENT

Best Four in St. Louis Will Man the Green and White Boat in River Race.

Despite a great many adverse rumors, the Century Club will again enter a four-oared crew in the Busch trophy event to be held the first Sunday in September. As the South Side Club has been very busy with work on the new club house, it was thought that no effort would be made to man a shell.

Willard Willing to Box Johnson in Bout Abroad

Many Admirers of American Giant Think He Has Good Chance.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Big Jess Willard, the Kansas slugger, has commissioned William Roop, a Philadelphia sporting man, now in France to arrange a match for him with Jack Johnson, the winner of the Smith-Carpenter match.

A Johnson-Willard match would be something worth while. There are many good judges who still have faith in the Kansas giant. The few defeats charged against him can easily be explained. The main point is that he has never been knocked out. None of the other leading contenders can say as much.

Willard has been shadowed a few times, but in no case was his defeat due to any physical defect. It is merely his judgment that has been at fault. A better ring general with his attainments would have won with ease in every case. At any rate, it will be time enough to condemn him when someone has been found able to put him down for the full count. Until this happens to proclaim him hopeless is merely guesswork. He should be held innocent until proved guilty.

Lost to Gunboat Smith.
Willard has taken part in only one 20-round battle—the only real test of general fighting ability. In that affair he held Gunboat Smith practically even. Those who saw the fight agree that he would have won with a knockout had he been more aggressive. In all other respects he showed himself to be a better man than the acknowledged champion white hope. Gunboat's reluctance to give him a return match is the best indication of what he thinks of the big fellow's prowess.

In a battle with Johnson, Willard's greatest fault might be turned into his greatest asset. In that fight he was blacked out by his opponents to all the leading. But if Johnson can be quoted as saying "still at the time all my arrangements are up in the air, and it will not be until late in the season that I will announce my future plans," it will be a triumph for Willard.

Oscar Wulff Quits.
When Oscar Wulff of the Century Boat Club finished second in the open mile and a quarter race for single scullers, Sunday, he rowed his last race in the one-man craft. Wulff also will give up the rowing game after the Busch cup four-oared race. He has no reason, but merely states that he is tired of it. He has been in the game for some time and done creditably.

Rumor has it that H. A. Bechtesbiller, well-known member of the famous C. B. C. pair-oared shell, will leave the Western in the fall. Bechtesbiller was booked to make the jump when Gosling hundred this spring. However, he was not able to practice every evening as per Coach orders, and he remained dissatisfied with the treatment that they are now receiving. Because of addition is being made to the club house, the boats are receiving no attention and some are positively unfit to row in.

The Western Rowing Club will decide early this week whether to compete in the national regatta, on the Schuylkill River, Aug. 7 and 8. A four and an eight will be sent.

MEMBERS OF NO. 2 MOOSE LODGE ARE LOCKED OUT

Detectives Guard Doors of Home at Grand Avenue and West Pine Boulevard.

CHARTER IS REVOKED

Supreme Lodge After Action at Midnight Takes Control of Headquarters.

Headquarters of St. Louis Lodge No. 2, Loyal Order of Moose, at Grand avenue and West Pine boulevard, was under a guard of private detectives Tuesday, following the revocation of the lodge's charter by the supreme lodge of the order.

About 6 a. m. a man who said his name was Rippe and that he was a high official of the supreme lodge, telephoned to police headquarters and asked that policemen be sent to the home of the local lodge, as he expected trouble there. He said the lodge's charter had been revoked at midnight and that members of the lodge might show their resentment when they learned of it.

Dissemination in Rank. Lieut. Doyle, acting Night Chief, refused to send policemen when Rippe told him private detectives already had been put on guard at the lodge headquarters.

There has been discussion in the ranks of the order in St. Louis for some time. Recently members of Lodge No. 2 seceded and formed a new lodge. They had objected to dividing with officials of the Supreme Lodge the money received from new members as initiation fees.

The Supreme Lodge then demanded that Lodge No. 2 discontinue certain of its members who were considered disloyal to the national body. Slowly in complying with this demand is said to have led to the revoking of the charter.

Former Dictator Deposed. Henry J. Straubinger, former dictator of Lodge No. 2, led the revolt after he had been deposed from that office. He is now dictator of the new lodge. Straubinger recently filed a $50,000 damage suit against prominent officials of the order, alleging that he was falsely accused in charges preferred against him before the supreme lodge. It was charged that Straubinger had caused dissension in the lodge by objecting to sharing the initiation fees with organizers sent here by the grand lodge.

At the lodge headquarters Tuesday there were no outward signs of disturbance or unusual activity. Private detectives guarded the entrance.

A man who said he was an officer of the lodge, but would not give his name, came to the door and told a Post-Dispatch reporter the charter had been revoked but that he expected all differences would be adjusted within a week and the charter would then be restored.

WOMAN THROWN FROM HORSE BREAKS ONE ARM

Two Months Ago She Fractured Three Ribs and Collarbone in Another Fall.

Mrs. Vendell Anthony, 24 years old, of 2808 Delmar boulevard, was thrown from her horse and suffered a fractured left arm at 5 p. m. Monday when her mount shied at some object at Webster and Cass avenues. She said a revolver was lost from her riding boot at the time.

Mrs. Anthony, whose husband is in the heavy stable business, was stoned by hoodlums from her horse at Easton and Vandeventer avenues at 12:30 a. m. May 27, as she was returning from Forest Park, where her husband had been rehearsing in one of the Paget scenes. At that time she suffered three fractured ribs and a fractured collar bone.

SHOOTS IN JEALOUS RAGE

Woman Injures Ceiling When Husband Stays Out Late.

Mrs. Helen Nelson, 28 years old, of 303 Washington avenue, fired a shot in her room Monday night and when a policeman called to investigate, she pointed to a bullet hole in the ceiling and said she had tried to kill herself. She said her husband, Robert, had remained out late and that she had become crazed with jealousy. It was about midnight and as several slumbers were disturbed by the shot, the policeman took Mrs. Nelson to the Dayton street station and preferred a charge of discharging firearms. Her husband later obtained her release on bond and they left the station in arm.

NEW METHOD OF EYE DISSECTION STIRS SCIENTISTS

Dr. F. A. Woll Gives First Public Demonstration of Retaining Choroid Retina.

100 OTHERS MAKE TEST

Entire Class at Optometry Congress Successful in Following Professor's Teaching.

Dr. Frederic A. Woll of the department of optometry of Columbia University, New York City, demonstrated before the post-graduate course of the scientific section of the Optometric Congress at the Planters Hotel Monday afternoon an anatomical feat which anatomists and scientists heretofore have declared could not be accomplished in eye dissecting. It was the retaining of the choroid and retina, the middle and inner layers over the eyeball, without puncture.

Dr. Woll was instructing a class in eye dissecting, and after leading the class through the ordinary method of cutting the eye in half he introduced his own technique, which was approved as original by the Anatomical Society, in September, 1912.

This is the first time Dr. Woll has made a public demonstration. After his demonstration the entire class tried the new technique, with the result of 100 perfect tests.

"It is simply a matter of technique," said Dr. Woll, "along scientific lines from the standpoint of study. This technique better enables the student to see the retina—which is the expansion of the optic nerve—a very delicate, highly sensitive membrane, upon which the object we look at is pictured."

The post-graduate course closed at noon Tuesday and was the most successful from the standpoint of attendance and the instruction offered in the history of the association.

The Optometric Congress began in the afternoon. Dr. Albert Meyer, Albert Lee, Minn., president of the American Optometric Association, presided.

L. W. Bugbee will speak in the evening on "Practical Points About Lenses."

George L. Schneider of San Francisco will tell "Why Retinal Image is Right Side Up Instead of Inverted."

George McL. Presson will bring a "Message From the East."

"The Outlook of Optometry in Colorado" will be the subject of W. E. Beahart.

MEDIATORS ATTEMPT TO AVERT RAILWAY STRIKE

Federal Board in Session With Managers and Chief of Enginemen's Unions.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Regular sessions of the Federal Board of Mediation with the managers of the Western railroads and the chief of the enginemen's unions were to begin today. They are to be held daily behind closed doors until agreement is reached or it is evident that agreement could not be reached. It was announced by Federal Judge Marshall A. Knapp, of the mediators.

The order of the proceedings will be a morning session with the managers and an afternoon session with the employees' committee of 100, headed by Warren S. Brown, grand chief of the engineers, and W. S. Carter, president of the enginemen's brotherhood. No joint sessions will be held, it was said. Nothing of the proceedings will be made public according to Judge Knapp, until the conference has ended.

The Federal mediators are William L. Chambers, G. W. W. Hanger and Judge Knapp. The railroad managers' committee is headed by A. W. Trenholm of Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha. Ninety-eight roads west of Chicago are affected. The men have demanded increased pay, alleging increased cost of living and that the roads are prosperous. A strike vote to endorse the demand was overwhelmingly voted.

Englishman Leaves Fortune to New Yorker Who Was Kind to Him When Homesick.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Frank E. Patterson was a waiter in the Hotel Avon, 10 Lexington avenue, two years ago and a man about 50 years old set one of his tables. He seemed downcast and the sympathetic waiter, serving him meticulously, gained the guests' confidence and confidence. He told Patterson he was an Englishman and he was very homesick in New York.

He said his name was Arton H. Patterson. He willingly accepted Patterson's offer to guide him about the city, and the waiter succeeded in driving his homesickness away. They became fast friends, and when the visitor was leaving Patterson went to his room and wrote him a letter. But the letter disappeared on account of his approaching departure.

Patterson went to Boston, where he lives at 19 West Dedham street. He continued as a waiter and corresponded regularly with his English friend. Last Wednesday Patterson was told that Batchelder, who lived in Dedham, England, was dead and that he had left $70,000 in his will to the waiter who had met him in New York.

WOMAN SAYS THIEF HIT HER WHILE SHE SLEPT

Awakens to Find Her Face Bruised and $10 Missing From House.

Mrs. Louise Ribelin, 45 years old, of 4064 Fulton avenue, told the police Tuesday a strange story of an injury to herself and the burglary of her home Saturday night.

She said she retired early, leaving the windows open and the doors unlocked. She awakened at 12:20 a. m. Sunday, suffering from a severe pain about her right eye and the right side of her face. She went to a mirror and discovered her right eye was closed and her face swollen and bruised.

Later in the day, she said, she discovered a $10 gold piece was missing from the house, and that there were other evidences of a burglary. She believes a burglar struck her with a weapon and stunned her.

What Dyspeptics Should Eat

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, many of the most popular foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in vitality. For the benefit of those who are afflicted with this condition, I would suggest that they should eat a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisphosphated magnesia in fruit juice or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, and should be taken immediately after the meal. It has no direct action on the stomach, but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation, it does more than could possibly be done by any other food or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine, but I cannot see the sense of dosing a patient with drugs or medicine when a simple remedy like bisphosphated magnesia will do the work. You can get bisphosphated magnesia at your drug store, or at the following stores: Woll-Veillon Drug Co. and Johnson Bros.—ADV.

W. S. CHAPIN DIES OF BULLET WOUND AT NARRAGANSETT

Relatives Believe Revolver Dropped While He Was Packing a Suit Case.

ALONE IN THE ROOM

Wife in Another Apartment Heard Shot and Was First to Reach Him.

Walter Sanford Chapin, who married Miss Mildred Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Dyer of the Buckingham Hotel, died at his mother's summer home at Narragansett Pier, Monday night, a few hours after he had been shot with a revolver while alone in his room.

Messages received by relatives in St. Louis said the revolver was accidentally discharged while Chapin was packing his suit case in preparation for going to New York with his wife. The revolver was said to have fallen to the floor and to have been discharged while Chapin was leaning over the suit case. The bullet struck him in the left side of the chest and emerged at the back.

He sank rapidly.

Chapin's wife was one of the first to reach him. A New York physician was summoned. It was at first thought Chapin had a chance for recovery, but he sank rapidly.

Before departing from St. Louis for New York at 11 p. m., Mrs. Dyer said her son-in-law had been troubled with heart disease and she feared this would complicate his case and make it more difficult for him to withstand the effect of the shooting. Mrs. Dyer made hurried preparations to go to New York when she received a message that her son-in-law had been shot, and when she departed she had not learned of his death.

Chapin and his wife 10 days ago arrived at Narragansett Pier from Pasadena, Cal., where they had been staying at the elder Mrs. Chapin's winter home. They were planning to go to housekeeping in New York.

See of Capitalist.

Chapin was 28 years old. He was the son of the late W. S. Chapin, a New York capitalist, and was a Harvard graduate. Mrs. Chapin is a graduate of Mary Institute and was a maid of honor to the Velled Prophet in 1912 when she made her debut. She is 20 years old. At the Buckingham Hotel, where her parents live, she entertained at dinner dances and was socially prominent.

The wedding of Chapin and Miss Dyer took place at St. Peter's Episcopal Church May 14, 1913. The bride's parents were the only witnesses. Since their marriage the Chapins spent most of their time on the Chapin estate in Pasadena. Mrs. Chapin's father is the publisher of a St. Louis weekly called "The Censor."

SWISS LIEUTENANT CAME HERE TO TAKE BRIDE

International Romance Began a Year Ago and Proposal Was Sent by Mail.

The marriage of Miss Lorraine Goulet of 4001 Botanical avenue to Andre E. Aubert of Geneva, Switzerland, an army lieutenant and banker, was the culmination of an international romance which had its inception a year ago, when Aubert was introduced to Miss Goulet at the home of her brother, Joseph Goulet, in New York.

Aubert was impressed at the first glance and paid such assiduous attention to Miss Goulet that in the short time before she returned to St. Louis and he went to Switzerland he won her consent to correspond with him.

Every day a letter started from Switzerland for St. Louis and every day a letter started from St. Louis for Switzerland, and cablegrams were not infrequent.

After the long-distance proposal had been accepted, Aubert urged an early marriage and came to St. Louis to claim his bride. The ceremony was performed at St. Margaret's Church. The couple left for Detroit. Later they will go to France and will then take up their residence in Geneva.

MRS. MCKINNEY WINS SUIT

Gets Judgment for $4335 on Husband's Policy.

Mr. Byrd N. McKinney of 6171 Kingsbury boulevard, widow of Charles S. McKinney, obtained judgment for $4335.75 against the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., on a $500 policy on her husband's life, in Judge Grimm's court Monday.

McKinney, who was vice-president of the Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co., died in the Merzantle Club Dec. 31, 1912. The insurance company contended he had not paid the last premium due more than a month before his death, and that as he paid up insurance the value of the policy was only $1540. The jury returned a verdict for the amount of the policy, less money borrowed on it by McKinney.

The negro also was fined a similar amount for accepting the tip. Sinclair's fine later was remitted.

RAILROAD SHOPS AND STEEL MILLS SHOW ACTIVITY

Chicago District Reports Men Being Hired Everywhere for Grain Rush.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Coincident with the news that the Burlington Railroad shops in Aurora now have more than 200 men at work, the largest number in the history of the road, came word from Gary announcing that the steel mills of that city and South Chicago henceforth will work five days a week, full-handed, instead of three days a week, short-handed, as they have been doing.

New orders, the biggest received so far this year, have come into the steel company in the last few days. Gary's mill, which hitherto has rolled only three days a week, started rolling five days a week and there was a proportionate increase in the activities of all the other departments of the mills.

Virtually the same situation exists in South Chicago. There is every evidence that the dullness which has characterized the last few months has vanished and is being replaced by conditions which promise an era of unparalleled prosperity.

Two hundred men have been added to the payroll of the Burlington shops in Aurora in the last month. There is unusual activity at the shops in preparation for the grain rush. Many engines are being repaired also. Scores of trainmen laid off because of the slackness in freight traffic have been put back to work.

Several of the larger factories in Aurora report they are working full-handed. Other factories whose chief products are railroad supplies are feeling the influence of the change in conditions. Farmers already are having difficulty hiring enough men to harvest their crops.

11 - HOUR LEGISLATURE

Short Special Session in Ohio Reduces Tax Levy.

COLUMBUS, O., July 21.—Completing the shortest legislative session in the history of Ohio, the eightieth General Assembly, which was commenced here at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the call of Gov. Cox, adjourned at 9 o'clock last night.

The Governor's chief object in calling the special session was to reduce the State tax levy to 45 mills.

SPOPEE, PARDONED INDIAN, ADOPTED BY BLACKFEET

Action Taken That Piegan Freed by President May Share in Tribal Rights.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Spopee, the Indian, who was pardoned by President Wilson on July 7, after spending 34 years in the Government Hospital for the Insane here, for murder, has been adopted by the Blackfeet tribe. Word to that effect was received today by Indian Commissioner Sells.

Spopee is a Piegan Indian, and before 1879 had been clearly identified with the Blackfeet. The Indian officials advised that he be formally adopted by the Blackfeet in order that he might fully share in the rights and privileges of the members of the tribe. The tribal council at a meeting at Browning, Mont., took action, and he now will receive his 320 acres of land.

Bismarck—the "Greatest of the Germans"

BISMARCK, like all Germans, prized Personal Liberty as the breath of life—a RIGHT to be guarded and defended at any cost. Among our millions of law-abiding German-American citizens there is not a man who does not consider it insolent tyranny of the most odious kind for any legislation to issue this command: "Thou shalt NOT eat this—thou shalt NOT drink that." Germans know that there is no evil in the light wines and beers of their fathers. EVIL ONLY IS IN THE MAN WHO MISUSES THEM. Fifty-seven years ago ANHEUSER-BUSCH founded their great institution upon the tenets of the Constitution of the United States. During these fifty-seven years they have honestly brewed an honest beer—the kind that has added to the temperance of nations. Their great brand—BUDWEISER—is demanded throughout the world. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles, proving it to be in a class by itself.

You don't have to help Fels-Naptha Soap get rid of dirt; IT helps YOU by dissolving the dirt in everything it touches. It is easy to use. Think of doing a big wash with cool or lukewarm water, no boiling, no hard rubbing, and having the clothes clean and white, hung on the line before noon.

In housecleaning it does the same thing—saves your time and strength. Cleans woodwork, takes stains out of carpets, freshens up matting, polishes brass. It brightens silverware and makes china and glass shine. Dissolves the grease on pots and pans. Does all this in cool or lukewarm water.

Anty Drudge's Advice About Saving Money

Mrs. Extravagant—"I wish I could save some money, but it's all I can do to make John's salary keep us, let alone put any away. I don't spend much on myself, either."

Anty Drudge—"Well, you can save the price of the washwoman every week, and the woman who comes in for a week or two twice a year to help you houseclean. If you'd use Fels-Naptha Soap you could do that work yourself and not be tired out, either."

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.

The Unwritten Law

A Story Visualizing a Phase of Bird Life, a Wounded and Hungry Crow Furnishing the Center of Interest.

By Mary Morrison.

WET were the leaves and few, and the rain, dripping from the almost bare branches of the trees, was growing colder. The sky was more to be dreaded than blindness. No crow could turn his back on a blind crow, nor on one hopelessly disabled.

It had been a pleasant summer home for crows here on Bullhead pond. Frogs and snakes had been plenty, and Gaunt, the crow, had provided handsomely for his family, until they were all well grown and able to provide for themselves, but the frogs were all down in the deep mud of the lake now, and would not come up until spring, and the snakes had gone into winter quarters.

His children had left for more prolific feeding grounds, and he mistrusted they had gone to join their fellows at the pond on Pohannock River. It was time, last year he had not delayed until this time, but this year—he hoped—dejectedly along a few steps and dragged one mangled, blood-dried wing happily over the wet leaves. He would never fly with the flock to the roosting place again. The rankling gnaw of imbedded bird shot ate deeper and deeper into his breast with each day, and each day he skulked farther and farther from the haunts of his brethren, like the coward he had grown, knowing that it must come—that sentence from the unwritten law of the wilderness which every crow knows, and which he knows it is sacred duty to carry out.

He felt instinctively the horror of cold and hunger and suffering which awaited him, and which were setting over him with each passing day of the winter year, and yet he hid himself away in a painful effort, sitting motionless under some overhanging shrub all day until driven out by hunger.

Dread Hunger Stares at Him.

It was hard to find food. Yesterday he had come upon a mole burrow, but along under the loose soil and had clawed him out hurriedly. It had been a scanty meal for a crow as empty as his own, but he was grateful. Today he had only been able to find a few dull slugs under the decaying bark of an old log. Soon these would be gone, and he would be forced to look for food in the grip of the cold. There was nothing so hard to bear as hunger, that he knew, and yet he skulked miserably from day to day and endured its pangs—why, he did not understand, for he could find it all so easily. One call of distress—that was all—and they would all flock to his assistance, his wild comrades. He could not understand the miserable tremor which shook him out of his hiding place. Why, he had given the death hiss himself, gladly and willingly, when his mate had been stricken blind by kingfishers as she was searching their nest for eggs. He recalled the fact now, that she, too, had flown desperately hither and thither.

Tommie Mouse and the Brownie

Sandman Story of How He Is Changed Back to Himself and Squeaks for Joy.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

TOMMIE managed to get to the ground and into the house without being seen by the dog, and the pantry door was open. "It is great fun being a cat, after all," thought Tommie, who had doubted a few minutes before if he had been wise to make a change. "Here I am in a pantry full of things I like and no one near."

But Tommie was mistaken, for up on a shelf was the house cat, who had taken advantage of the cook's absence from the kitchen and was drinking from a bowl. When she saw Tommie she humped her back and hissed at him.

"What are you doing in my pantry?" she asked. "You get right out of here," and without waiting for a reply she sprang at poor Tommie, knocked over the bowl from which she was drinking, and a dish of soup, which spilled over Tommie, and when the cook came into the kitchen just as he was running out she seized a broom and chased him out.

"B'D luck to you!" said the cook, "coming in here and upsetting all the cream and soup. I don't see where that strange cat came from," poor Tommie heard her say from his hiding place under the steps.

Hungry and frightened, Tommie sat under the steps until he thought it safe to come out, and then he ran to the woods as fast as he could go.

He looked where he had seen the Brownie the day before, but he was not there now, and poor Tommie lay down beside the rock and began to mew out his grief.

"Hello, is it you making all this noise?" said someone, and Tommie looked up to see the Brownie standing on the rock looking down at him.

"I heard someone making a mournful sound, and I thought, 'So I came out to see what it was.' You have your wish, I see; you are a big white cat. Why are you making such a fuss?"

"Oh! Mr. Brownie, please get me changed into a mouse again. I haven't had anything to eat and the cat has me and the cook drives me out with a broom when I go into the house; even the house cat treats me as if I were a mouse," cried Tommie.

"I KNEW how it would be," said the Brownie, "and the fairy said so, too; but I told her the only way to cure you was to let you have a try at being a cat. I will see what I can do for you."

The Brownie knocked on the rock three times, and as it opened the three times Tommie found his nose upon the cold rock as he tried to follow his friend, for he did not want to lose sight of him until he was changed into a mouse again.

He had to wait, however, for the rock closed and shut him outside, and there he waited until he fell asleep.

But he was no longer a cat when he awoke; he was a mouse again, and Tommy Mouse was so happy he jumped up and danced on his hind legs, ran over the rock beside him and squeaked for joy, but nowhere could he find the Brownie.

So Tommy Mouse ran home. "I guess he knows how happy and thankful I am; those Brownie fellows know everything," said Tommie.

entire proof. Since then the officers and tars of the British and American navies have been on the friendliest terms. At Manila the British sea fighters, from the command ship, were pro-American to a man. More recently, in Mexican ports, British sailors had another opportunity to demonstrate their fraternal feeling for their American cousins. When the marines and sailors went ashore at Vera Cruz they were cheered on their way by the men on the British cruisers in the harbor.

At Tampico many Americans had cause to be thankful to the sea fighters from John Bull's tight little island, and to their commander, Sir Christopher George Francis Maurice Cradock, the Rear-Admiral in charge of the British Squadron off Tampico. In his work of settling American refugees out of the turbulent country the Admiral co-operated effectively with Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister.

St. Louis' Busy Suffragists

By Alice Curtice Moyer.

Let no one imagine suffrage headquarters in St. Louis as a dull place this very dull and very warm day. On the contrary, it is one of the liveliest spots in the city. For the first time in Missouri history the men are called upon to decide by their vote whether women shall vote.

Already the organization opposed to woman suffrage has had an envoy in St. Louis to survey the situation. Already the enemy is seeking an insight into our plans, and we are telling them all about it, for we have just one plan—hard work.

There is a letter on my desk from a man in Kentucky who wants to send him some arguments on the "off side" of women suffrage. I asked a newspaper man, who used to play with oxen down in Kentucky, just what side that was, and he told me it was the "wrong" side. Therefore I had no arguments to send the inquirer—for there are no arguments on the side opposed to woman suffrage.

According to Will Irwin, the writer, the sad thing about woman suffrage is the fact that there is no argument against it.

And there is a letter from a man right here in St. Louis who tries to make us believe that his wife wrote it. He warns us to "let my old man alone. He ain't got no time for such nonsense as wimmen votin'."

What Thin Folks Should Do to Gain Weight

Physician's Advice for Thin, Underdeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from extreme emaciation, and as a result, the stomach, which, having tried advertised food, has failed to digest it, is unable to take any more food. The result is a vicious circle, and the body becomes thinner and thinner.

After great volcanic eruptions the air for several years is filled with volcanic dust, which causes red sunsets and other unusual phenomena. The dust raised by the Katmai eruption seems now to have entirely settled, after having caused marked haziness of the atmosphere for many months. It was nearly four years before all the effects of the great Krakatoa eruption of 1883 passed away.

High Cost of Loafing

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

THE HIGH COST OF LOAFING—therein perhaps lies the basis of all the "high cost" cry that is echoed everywhere.

A little woman in "loafing her troubles" the other day, said:

Indeed, it is not so much the high cost of loafing, but the high cost of living, when in reality it is the high cost of WASTING TIME.

More truth than epigram, little woman. In your case it is certainly "wasteful waste." Loafing costs more than anything else. For you are spending not only your money but yourself in the process.

It costs more money to loaf than to live. For you are not only spending the money that you have made, but the money you should be making. It is only the rich man who can afford the high cost of loafing, and he is realizing how costly it is, not only in dollars but in depression.

He gets bored to death at throwing his money away for a new thrill, while he is loafing.

To stand still is to stagnate. It is costly business. The man who continues to take the time to loaf loses the joy of living, in that he is continually consuming without producing. That is fatal.

The one element, activity, is the most necessary to the human. Besides, Satan finds mischief for idle hands, and that is how we get the "wasteful waste" in the loaf habit. It comes high and leads low. A man or woman who forever seeks pleasure as the alpha and omega of existence, usually finds the roads paved with high prices.

There is the son who has nothing to do and waits for his father's check. He is usually the boy who has to pawn his jewelry to pay a debt of honor.

There is the woman who fills from shop to shop, having nothing else to do, but shop, and her fancy lights on this, that and the other costly gewgaw, that she sent home the spur of the moment, the reckoning often comes with the quarrel when the bill arrives at the end of the month.

And all, all are the result of too much idleness, too much time unaccounted for, and the result must always pay at higher figures.

When you stop to think of it, loafing is the costliest thing in the world.

A Beauty Spot in Paris.

The Place de la Concorde, in Paris, is one of the most beautiful in the world. It was not until 1763 that the grounds were first adorned by the erection of an equestrian statue of Louis XV, and Gabriel, the architect, constructed the balustrades and pavilions that are seen today.

The present design, however, was made by Hittorf in 1854. In 1792 the statue of the king was removed by the populace, and the square became known as the Place de la Revolution.

During the bloody period the guillotine was placed here, and Louis XVI was executed on Jan. 21, 1793, and in the following October the unfortunate Marie Antoinette shared a like fate.

Chapters From a Woman's Life

By Dale Drummond.

CHAPTER LIV.

WAS aghast! We had about $320 when I left, and Jack had written that he had made $500. What could it mean? I turned to him for an explanation.

"Don't look at me like that, Sue. I haven't swallowed the money!"

"But where has it gone?" I asked.

"I told you I had given the men $500. Your expenses were $100, and I sent you a check for $200. My expenses and some bills—never mind what!—indifferently, 'were $200 more. Then I took a flyer one day and lost about $200. It's gone, so don't talk about it!"

"I don't see what you want to talk 'flyers,' as you call them, for! If you would let things that you know nothing about alone, and stick to the things Mr. Cosgrove and others that do mind tell you, we might have had that money to use!"

"Cut it out, Sue! It doesn't look very well for you to find fault with me. Wasn't it your nagging that got me into the market? If you say so, I'll quit right where we are, and never touch the blamed thing again! My life hasn't been worth living half the time this last year!"

I looked at him in amazement. Quit? Why, how would we furnish the house, as I had firmly decided it must be furnished. How buy the clothes I intended to buy? No, indeed! Jack should not quit. I did my best to bring the conversation back to more pleasant topics, but Jack did not recover his usual manner until we had reached home and he was having his romp with the children.

"Oh, Had I but Known!"

HAD I been able to look into the future, had I known that that was a crucial moment in Jack's life, had I told him to quit, to go back to a more simple way of living, instead of declaring that he shouldn't, what I might have saved him a great deal of trouble.

I know, I would on my knees have begged him never to speculate again. But I did not know.

Although I said nothing more to Jack about his losing the $200, it rankled me. I was a young person in my family who was learning to play, and I was a young person in my family who was learning to play, and I was a young person in my family who was learning to play.

"Ned told me it was a little beauty. It's the dearest house. And Jack planned it, every bit himself!" I told her proudly.

"I should think a broker's planing might prove quite expensive," she replied, absently.

"Twenty-five dollars a month," he replied, absently.

What Kind of Neighbor Are You?

NOW that the windows are all up, are the neighbors obliged to listen to the strumming on your piano or the clatter of your phonograph from early morning to dusk?

When you stop to think of it, loafing is the costliest thing in the world.

laughed. When Jack came home I told him. Milred Somers had been with me, and he seemed annoyed.

"Pity she couldn't let you get your trust money, didn't she?" I asked. "Why, Jack whatever she says!" I asked, astonished at his manner. "I thought you liked her? You said nothing like that when Neil and Gertie came over last night."

"That's different! You've known them longer, and been more intimate with them!"

I could have told them differently. If borrowing money was a sign of intimacy, then mine had been more with Milred Somers than any other woman I knew.

"I thought Gertie looked worried. And isn't she thinner?" Jack asked. "You know I haven't seen her since you went away. She didn't look well." I answered, thinking of the la valiere as the possible reason.

"Poor Jack Was Worried."

It was but a few days after my return that I noticed the worried, anxious expression creeping back on Jack's face.

"What are you fretting about?" I asked him.

"Oh, nothing much!" then as though it were a relief to give his feelings expression. "Those blasted plumbers got nasty today and wouldn't do another stroke of work unless I agreed to pay them all they asked. The robbers!"

"But didn't they agree to do the work for a certain sum?"

"No—Smith told me about what it would be, and so I told them to go ahead. They wanted nearly $500 more than I had figured. The worst of it is I guess I'll have to pay it!"

"But that's awful, throwing $500 away like that! We won't have enough to buy any stock at all with pretty soon! Fifty hundred dollars one day and $500 the next!" I gumbled unreasonably.

"Neither the stocks! Mr. Flinn raised my salary again today, and I couldn't look him in the eye when I thanked him. I don't know what he'll say when he finds out about the house! That's the reason I can't have any trouble with the men. I must keep the fact that we own the house away from Mr. Flinn. If I turn out a criminal, Sue, it will be partly your fault for urging me into this, and partly mine for being weak enough to allow you." He finished bitterly.

A Beauty Spot in Paris.

The Place de la Concorde, in Paris, is one of the most beautiful in the world. It was not until 1763 that the grounds were first adorned by the erection of an equestrian statue of Louis XV, and Gabriel, the architect, constructed the balustrades and pavilions that are seen today.
